The more commands you select, the more time your dog will need to learn everything. On average, expect to commit approximately three sessions to effectively train one new concept. Multiple concepts may be selected if your dog already has familiarity with them. If you have any questions or would like a free training phone consultation, please check off the appropriate box below!

Please note: The training service is only available if you have already contacted our training department. For first timers, we will accommodate 3 sessions of basic training. Please fill out the training registration form on our website at your earliest convenience.

BFFE Policies for contagious virus's ex: Kennel Cough

Please make sure your dog's Bordetella vaccine is up to date. The Bordetella vaccine helps to protect your dog against kennel cough, however, much like the flu vaccine for people, the Bordetella vaccine does not protect them against ALL strains of kennel cough. Kennel cough is like a cold in people and is just as contagious. Please DO NOT bring your dog in if he/she is coughing

Dogs can get kennel cough in any area where dogs frequent, the vet, dog parks, dog daycare, dog parks, or your daily walk. It is very similar as to us getting a cold and is contagious in the same way, it's an airborne virus. Coughing in dogs is a unique sound, it sounds like them trying to vomit but bringing nothing up. Some over the counter medications such as vitamin C or Robitussin can be effective in making your pup more comfortable while the virus runs its course. Generally, our beloved pets fight off the equivalent to a common cold in people, quite well, and do not require veterinary attention. Symptoms of a dog developing secondary infections such as bronchitis or pneumonia (the same complications that can develop in people), are lethargy, purulent discharge from the nostrils, vomiting, or fever (normal dog temp is 101 to 102). Symptoms typically show 2-14 days after exposure, but each dog is different. Like humans, contraction of the virus after exposure depends on many different factors such as stress level, vaccination status, and the strength of the individual's immune system.

We know that your pets are important to you and are like family. We treat them as family when they are here, so you don't have to worry. We are professionals that take care of lots of pets at once and need to be aware of their safety and welfare. We want to inform and share with you, our clients, how we handle contagious illnesses because every dog we board is important to us. We do require that all dogs utilizing our services must be free of contagious illnesses. If your pup has symptoms of a contagious illness (coughing, vomiting, diarrhea, eye or nose discharge, fever, viral warts etc.) he/she cannot attend. Please check with your veterinarian regarding the duration of his/her illness and when he/she will no longer be contagious. Much like kids in school or camp, if your pup exhibits any symptoms of contagious illness during their time with us, you will be required to pick your pup up within a reasonable time frame to avoid exposure to our other guests.

Overnight dogs must have an emergency contact in the area who can pick your dog up or he/she will be transported to the nearest vet able to quarantine your dog at your expense. We apologize for any inconvenience this may cause you. We will do everything within our power to keep your pet healthy during their stay with us. We want you to know that we care deeply for each guest that comes through our doors and providing the best care possible is our bottom line. I have read the above and will comply with Best Friends Fur Ever's Contagious Illness Policy.
